1. Employability Profile Summary

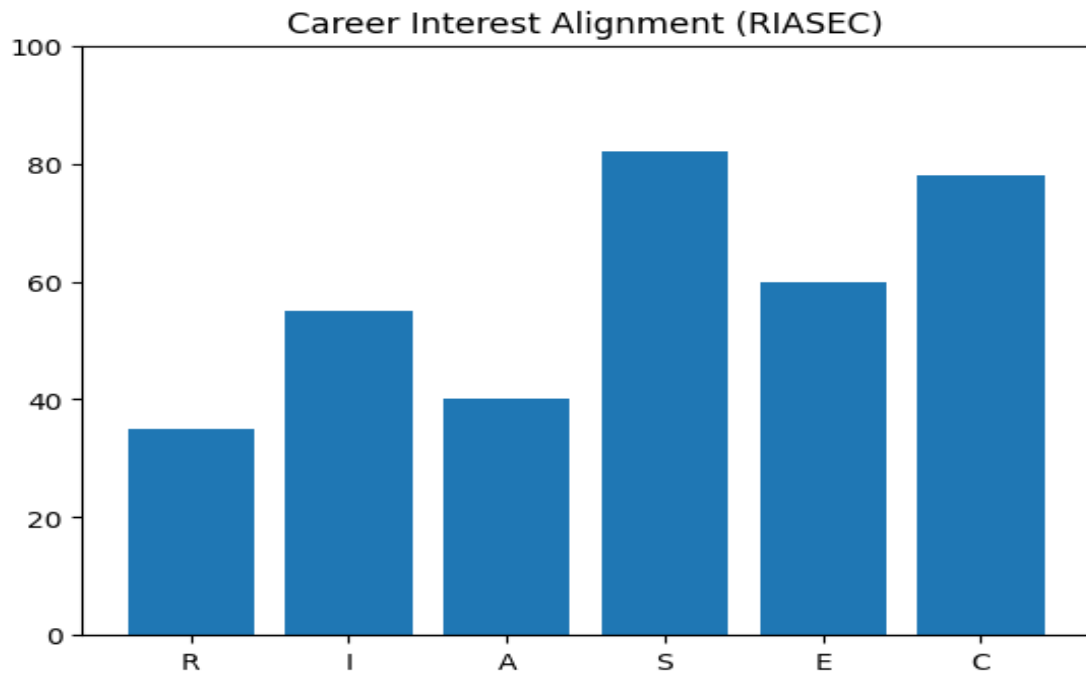

Arathi shows strong employability readiness for structured, customer-facing and process-driven roles. Her assessment indicates consistent reasoning accuracy, strong communication orientation, and ethical work behavior. Overall employability confidence is Moderate–High.

2. Cognitive & Aptitude Analysis

Aptitude results show high strengths in verbal reasoning, attention accuracy, and work-style problem solving. Numerical reasoning is practical and sufficient for billing, targets, and performance metrics.

3. Career Interest Alignment (RIASEC)

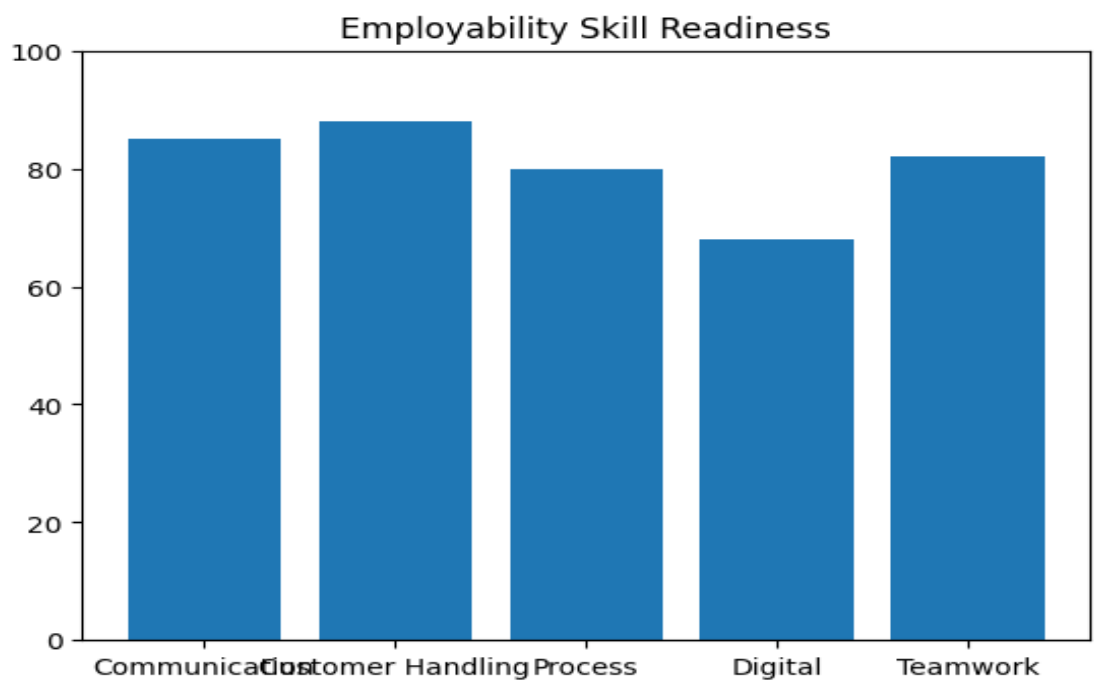

Dominant interests are Social (S) and Conventional (C), indicating preference for people interaction, structured systems, and service environments. This aligns well with customer support and coordination roles.

4. Work Personality Snapshot

Arathi demonstrates high conscientiousness, integrity, and team cooperation. Stress tolerance is moderate–high, supporting stable performance in customer-facing roles. Learning adaptability improves with guidance.

5. Employability Skill Readiness

Strong communication and customer handling skills are evident. Process adherence and teamwork are reliable strengths. Digital tool exposure and proactive initiative are recommended development areas.

6. Best-Fit Career Role Clusters

Primary Fit Roles: Customer Support Executive, Telecaller, CRM Operations, Client Coordination.
Growth Roles (with upskilling): Customer Success Associate, Account Support Executive.
Roles requiring high autonomy, creativity, or technical complexity are less suitable at this stage.

7. Career Development Guidance

Short-term focus should be on CRM tools, advanced call handling, and customer lifecycle understanding.
Mid-term growth can target senior support or team coordination roles.

8. Career Direction Clarity Index

Career direction clarity is HIGH. Current role alignment is strong with clear progression pathways within service and operations domains.
